

Premier Officially Greeted Will Ship From Australia

Ottawa, Ont.—Welcoming officially the goodwill ship "Canadian Cruiser" to the "promoting adventure in intra-empire trade" to use the words of Mr. H. H. Stevens, Prime Minister, from his office in the Parliament Buildings greeted Captain W. H. Stevens, who had just reached Canadian shores.

"We realize," Premier Bennett declared in a telephone and wireless conversation with the vessel as she came in, "that the ship is coming from Australia, that we are living in a period of world-wide disturbance and unrest, and unless you within the Empire are united and present a solid front we certainly will not reach that prosperous state which it is our hope to attain."

They sign upon the horizon points to improving conditions, and we have the greatest opportunity that has come in this or any other generation to secure the economic unity of the various countries, parts of the British Empire, for the mutual advantage of us all, and to play an even greater part in shaping the destiny of the world and ensuring the peace, happiness and prosperity of mankind."

Members of the Prime Minister's staff were heard in Australia through a wireless broadcast and were also seen in the "Canadian Cruiser" on the assignment of escorted Australian troops. The vessel will be in the port of Sydney to reach Canada with Antipodian products since production of the goods in Australia is at a low level. On its return voyage, the vessel will be laden with a varied assortment of Canadian goods for export to the United Kingdom.

"You certainly have come on a great mission," Premier Bennett told the commander of the goodwill ship, "and we are glad to have you, bringing a new trail, as you have brought us a ship which is in the way of fitting a journey ship getting the waters on a new and great, and we believe a promising adventure."

Some Australian products, and I have something of the men who were responsible for their making, and we are glad to have them. Cyprus Trouble Queleed Disturbances On Island Are Apparently Over

London, England.—Disturbances on the island of Cyprus, apparently arising from the installation of British troops, were understood to have subsided in the face of the arrival of British troops, and by the British Government.

The colonial office announced the situation was "satisfactory" and generally, though still unsettled. The British Government is understood to have been endeavoring to bring the government of Cyprus to the point of understanding and co-operation among the various parties.

British newspapers of the Royal Air Force carrying the military arrived at Beirut, in the capital, on the day from Egypt and four British fighting vessels landed reinforcements at Larnaca, Larnaca, and Paphos.

Co-operating with Cyprus authorities, the troops were employed in vigorous patrolling through these principalities and the effect of their presence was to ease the tension and discontinue religious disorders. It was decided that further reinforcements would be unnecessary.

Mobs which held the government's line at Nicosia and held firm in the streets for several days, assembled again Thursday night, October 10, and were ordered to disperse. The troops were ordered to fire on them when they had been fired were barricaded. It was estimated that only one day from the disturbance and that nearly 10,000 of the 150,000 people in the island had participated.

Valuable Source Of Radium

Pitchblende Deposits Of Great Bear Lake, N. T.

"At present only a small gas barge drawing a 10-ton-capacity scow is available for shipment across Great Bear Lake to Fort Norman, and ore has to be handled several times. Large tugs and scows will be required on the lake, and a truck road or light railway is suggested as the best means of overcoming the rapid difficulties of Great Bear River passage."

"As regards the actual mining, the life of the ground could hardly be improved upon, and development would be of the simplest character."

blende in this region was made by Gilbert La Bine in May, 1930. Tests made by the laboratories of the mines branch indicated that the ore came from vein deposits that might be of economic importance and Mr. Spence was instructed to visit the locality and report on the situation.

Good Rule To Follow

Late Dwight Morrow Said "Don't Take Yourself Too Seriously"

They say that Dwight Morrow throughout his career as lawyer, banker and statesman, adhered strictly to what he termed "rule six." And

It is a very good rule, so good that it might be hoped other men in high stations would adopt it as their guiding maxim. It is good because it pre-supposes a belief that other men may also have some knowledge, some purpose, some honesty of thought and conviction and that omniscience does not center in any one human being or in any one group of human beings. Moreover, it provides a way for meeting different opinions on some other ground than that of dictatorial opposition. They say that Mr. Morrow was
